

silently

now we are silent
devon remembers
the water-filled day
a sun-filled vision
that hill comes to meet me are we halfway?
the long sea oblivious
and down that lane of garlic cow pat and ozone
the ruined church is ringed by sheep, still sinking from thought only now in recollection have we come through